Re.: Call for the release of human rights lawyer Intigam Aliyev

Mr President,

We, the undersigned independent lawyers, barristers or attorneys-at-law, write to you to express our concern over the sentencing of our colleague, human rights lawyer Intigam Aliyev.¹

Intigam Aliyev is one of the most widely-respected human rights lawyers in Azerbaijan. In recognition of his legal work and human rights advocacy, Intigam Aliyev received the Homo Homini Award from the Czech NGO People in Need in 2012. He has indeed been at the forefront of rights advocacy in the country for two decades as a human rights lawyer and head of the officially registered NGO Legal Education Society, an organisation promoting awareness of the law and providing legal support to individuals and organizations.

In those years, Intigam Aliyev was one of the first Azerbaijani lawyers to utilize the European Court of Human Rights and has submitted hundreds of cases – including approximately a dozen cases, which are currently pending. His cases involve freedom of expression and association, democratic rights, the prohibition of torture, and due process rights. Intigam Aliyev is also the regional tutor in the Human Rights Education for Legal Professionals (HELP) programme of the Council of Europe. Whilst in detention, he was elected member of the Expert Council on NGO Law of the Council of Europe.²

Intigam Aliyev is the teacher in international human rights law for a generation of young women and men in Azerbaijan. Stronger than any international recognition, his work makes him known in the country as “müəllim,” or “teacher.”

We identify with Intigam Aliyev because we believe everybody should have a right to a fair trial, just as he does. Yet, Intigam Aliyev’s trial was marred by procedural irregularities and violations of the right to a public hearing and the right to access to the files and documents of the case. Most importantly, Intigam Aliyev’s attorney managed to prove that whilst Intigam Aliyev was charged in relation to the implementation of 13 projects without registration of grant contracts, 7 of them had in fact been implemented before 2009, at a time when the law did not demand any registration. The remaining 6 grant contracts were implemented after the due registration at the Ministry of Justice.³

Furthermore, the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe requested “detailed information on all criminal charges pending against [Intigam Aliyev].”⁴ This highlights the Committee’s preoccupation that alleged victims whom Intigam Aliyev represents before the European Court for Human Rights remain with no representation at the European Court.

¹ Intigam Aliyev was sentenced to seven and a half years imprisonment on 22 April 2015. More information available at <http://humanrightshouse.org/Articles/20909.html>.

² The Expert Council on NGO law was established by the Conference of International Non-governmental Organisations of the Council of Europe in January 2008 with the aim of creating an enabling environment for NGOs through examining national NGO legislation and its implementation and provides advice on how to bring national law and practice into line with Council of Europe standards and European good practice. We sympathize with Intigam Aliyev because we are worried about increasing pressure against lawyers in Azerbaijan, of which Intigam Aliyev is a symbol. Past harassment of Intigam Aliyev and his colleague Annaghi Hajibayli is also illustrative of the campaign against independent lawyers. Both lawyers were refused membership in the Bar Association in 2009. The two lawyers proceeded to sue the Bar Association for failing to comply with existing legislation. Following the lawsuit, which the lawyers lost, the Bar Association filed a civil suit against Intigam Aliyev demanding 200'000 AZN (approximately € 175'000) because of articles about the Bar Association leadership that Intigam Aliyev had published. Outcry from Azerbaijani civil society and international NGOs were successful in pressuring the authorities to drop the charges. Later, however, a Sheki Appeal Court judge filed another civil suit against Intigam Aliyev and his organization, the Legal Education Society, demanding 20'000 AZN (approximately €17'500) for defamation. The court ruled that Intigam Aliyev should pay 2'000 AZN (approximately €1'750) in damages. Both Intigam Aliyev and Annaghi Hajibayli have yet to be admitted to the Bar Association.

In addition to imprisonment, disbarment, and smear campaigns, the government uses other inventive ways to interfere with defendants' rights to counsel. In the cases of Intigam Aliyev, the prosecution has called members of his legal team as witnesses, thereby precluding them from acting as defense counsel.⁵

We further identify with Intigam Aliyev because, for all of us, being a lawyer is a unique privilege. We identify with Intigam Aliyev because in Azerbaijan, any of us could be arrested simply for doing the same work as he did.

We are also extremely worried to hear that the detention conditions of Intigam Aliyev have an impact on his already poor health. He suffers from severe chronic headaches in addition to nerve pain and has reportedly been denied of appropriate health care to date. However, lawyer Javad Javadov has recently again communicated that Intigam Aliyev is suffering from severe back pain.⁶ Furthermore, there is insufficient ventilation and heating in the cell and hot water is allowed only twice a week. Inadequate space in the prison cell makes it nearly impossible for him to walk. Access to proper nutritional food is also restricted. Moreover, he can meet his family only through a glass barrier once a week speaking over a telephone.

We call upon you, Mr President, to immediately and unconditionally release Intigam Aliyev and rehabilitate his civil and political rights. As a matter of basic humanitarian principles, we call upon you to provide medical care to Intigam Aliyev and ensure that he is receiving complete and necessary treatment for all medical concerns.

In his Third party intervention to the European Court of Human Rights on the case of Intigam Aliyev, the Council of Europe Commissioner for Human Rights underscored that the present case is an illustration of a number of the recent arrests and detentions of Azerbaijani human rights defenders related to the shortcomings in the NGO legislation.⁷ We further call upon you to release and rehabilitate all prisoners of conscience and drop all charges and investigations pending against journalists, political opposition leaders, grassroots activists, human rights defenders, lawyers, and their organisations, as documented in the recent report issued by Freedom Now and the Human Rights House Network.⁸

Yours sincerely,

⁵ Fariz Namazli, Alayif Hasanov, Khalid Bagirov and Adil Ismayilov, four of the five lawyers who have been representing Intigam Aliyev since his detention on 8 August 2014, were removed from the case on 30 September 2014.
