Since 2014, Russia's occupation of Ukrainian territories has been marked by widespread violations of international humanitarian law and fundamental human rights. Among them is the systematic persecution of religious communities, clergy, and people of faith who refuse to submit to Russian political and religious influence.

Based on survivor and witness testimonies, IPHR's new report, Who Is Your God? Religious Terror in the Temporarily Occupied Territories, documents a consistent pattern of censorship and control of religious life, seizure and destruction of places of worship, looting, arbitrary detention, imprisonment, torture, sexual violence, and other forms of cruel and inhuman treatment targeting people on the basis of their religious beliefs and perceived opposition to the occupation.

The launch will feature voices of survivors and discuss the findings of the report, especially how these acts form part of a systematic pattern of repression and constitute serious violations of human rights.
